Task 2.

1. How many hours do teachers waste weekly marking homework?
2. Are there any cases in which robots perform better in comparison to ~~human~~ ordinary people?
3. Why are teachers from different countries leaving?
4. What does Anthony Seldon think concerning the possibility of teachers being replaced by robots?
5. Who will be capable of reading students' faces in 2027?

105.

Task 3.

The main topic of the news article "Robot teachers?" by Ian Wright is the possibility of robots partly replacing people in ^{creative} ~~some~~ fields in the forthcoming future.

On the one hand, robots have proved to perform better in medicine, for instance, at diagnosing illnesses. Anthony Seldon, an education expert, predicts that ~~as~~ teachers would be robots' assistants. On the other hand, it's highly unlikely that robots will ever be able to network with people well enough.

Nevertheless, the fact is that many countries are in urgent need of teachers. Feeling overwhelmed, they are leaving in search of a less difficult job, so robots would serve a good alternative to nothing. Moreover, had robots helped teachers, they would have had more energy for their work.

In my opinion, robots do take advantage over people in certain fields. Even though they would hardly ever replace people, they could really enhance teachers' productivity by helping them.

Task 4.

I suddenly turned into a balloon that was flying in the sky high above dark-blue seas and picturesque ~~seas~~ islands. ~~I couldn't believe that my dream had finally come true.~~ I was a rather lonely child who had always been dreaming of flying among soft clouds, talking to birds, making miracles. I wanted to be similar to the main characters of fairy tales and ~~fill~~ fill people's hearts with kindness and love. And here was I.

I decided to take rest on one of the fluffy clouds, but soon the wind blew ~~again~~ and I was flying again. Numerous cities, tiny towns and villages were somewhere beneath.

Suddenly I heard a cry of a child.

"My ballo-o-o-o-o-n! It's gone!", the poor girl was crying.

"Darling, sweetheart, please, come on, we have to go. Mommy can't be late for work", her mother answered.

I wanted to help them and get closer, but I didn't have wings and could do nothing. ~~Then~~ I decided to ~~be~~ beg the wind for help:

"Dear, dear wind, would you...". I didn't have a chance to finish the phrase, as I was abruptly interrupted by a blow of wind.

I felt completely lost for a couple of seconds, until the world suddenly stopped turning round. I felt two hands ~~touching~~ soothing the surface and saw a smile with two teeth lacking in it.

"Mommy, I caught it!", the familiar voice said with a laugh.

"It's amazing, honey. It'll definitely help you to make new friends in your kindergarten", the mother answered, kissing her daughter in a cheek, that was still wet ~~after tears~~ from tears.

I did all my best to help to the girl to find friends. I was playing with the wind and flying from one child to another. If I had a mouth, I would be smiling, but all I could was to listen to the careless laugh.

Soon ~~the~~ a small crowd of new friends surrounded the girl. I wish I could listen to their talks forever, but a gentle blow of wind made me fly again. ~~I was sure that at that moment I knew that air balloons are filled with air, but I was sure that at that moment a bit of happiness filled me as well.~~

I woke up in the morning and was the happiest human in the world. ~~I had a dream came true~~. I couldn't believe that my dream had finally come true.

* "Another unusual dream", I thought.

I suddenly turned into a balloon that was flying high above the ~~clouds and~~ dark blue seas. I couldn't believe in the sky that my dream had finally come true. I ~~had always~~ ^{was always} ~~was~~ ^{rather lonely} a ~~curious~~ child who had been dreaming of flying ~~among~~ ^{soft & make in} clouds ~~since watching cartoons about and talking to birds.~~ ^{right I miracles} I wanted to find ~~the~~ ~~one~~ friend, ~~as~~ ^{& fill people's hearts with kindness & love} ~~the little Prince as he~~ be similar to Little Prince & ~~found~~ ^{found} a fox.

I decided to take rest on one of the fluffy clouds, but soon the wind blew & I was flying again. Numerous ^{huge} cities, ^{tiny} towns & villages were ^{beneath} ~~below~~. "Hey, daddy! ~~mommy!~~ ^{mommy!} A balloon! look, look there!" a child cried out, pointing his finger at me.

"A charming one, isn't it?" ^{the mother} ~~she~~ answered. ^{pretty girl with a ponytail}

I was ~~amazed~~ thrilled! Someone called me charming! I tried as hard as I could, ~~but~~ to fly nearer to them, but ~~couldn't~~ I could do nothing to control the flight, as I had no wings. Then I asked the wind: "Now, dear wind! Please, let me..." I was abruptly interrupted by a blow of wind. ^{I didn't have a chance to}

I ~~was~~ ^{finish} completely lost for a couple of seconds ^{as} ~~as~~ the world ^{gentle arm to me} ~~kept~~ ^{→ came} turning around, ~~but~~ ^{suddenly stopped}

~~I felt two hard~~ ^{Two hands were} on the ~~swedge~~ ^{ridge} of the round body & saw a smile with a couple of teeth lacking in it. + [234]

"Mommy, I caught it!" ^{Branch} the familiar voice said. ^{Branch} "Wanna play with ~~it~~ ^{it} outside & I'll cook dinner, darling"

^{come on, make friends with the neighbours} "Probably they've just moved", I thought, being carried by the girl. ~~I didn't~~ I didn't expect that an ordinary balloon would attract so much attention, but it did. In half an hour there was a small crowd that surrounded the girl. They soon forgot about me and just kept talking on various themes, ~~but~~ ^{the} ~~is~~ ^{is} that ~~on~~ ^{or} I helped someone to find a friend seemed to be a miracle. I ~~felt~~ fly up again with a gentle blow of wind. ~~though I felt there~~ ^{was} ~~was~~ ^{was} though the only thing that filled me was ~~air~~ ^{air}, but it would be enough ~~for me~~ ^{for me} even such an insignificant thing helped me to fill someone's hearts
