WRITING

Purpose of the report
 The aim of the conducted report is to shed light upon how modern teenagers prefer to occupy their spare time, what has changed since 2010, which new trends have arisen.

Methods used to get the information
 Teenagers who study either in high school or colledge were asked to fill the blanks. Youngsters could choose a variant suggested by the author of the survey and write their own commentary on how they spend their leisure time. The received information was compared to the similar data of the year 2010.

Comparing and contrasting

First of all, I have to pinpoint that none of the rates have remained in the same position. It goes to show that all spheres of teenagers' lives are exposed to drastic changes these days, including their leisure activities. A dismal trend of avoiding reading books seems to have almost disappeared to the relief of parents and our government as well. The presented data shows that the percentage of those who devote their time to reading has notably increased. According to the information that I managed to gather, youngsters are losing interest in computer games. This may imply that some teens are now more concentrated on education and leading social lives. It can be considered as a positive change, since many youngsters managed to "escape the virtual reality". Walking still remains popular among teens. Its rate has only slightly changed. Teens claim that this activity helps them to avoid monotony of their daily lives. The survey reveals that the amount of young people who go to the cinema has decreased due to the fact that many teens prefer to watch films at home with their friends now.

Conclusion and probable future trends

All things considered, it can be concluded that teenagers' education started to more teenagers realise how crucial education is and how to spend time more wisely. I am convinced that the popularity of various activities connected with self-advancement will only grow in the future.
