TASK 4

Reasons Motivating Students to Learn Languages Online

18th of May 2020

Jane Johnson for "Education Today"

Nowadays there are no boundaries for getting education. Many students choose online language learning. What are the reasons motivating students to make this choice? We have asked 100 students from Jackson High School and their parents to name six major reasons. Overall, the aim of this report is to analyze and compare the data, give some possible explanations and predict the further development of the situation.

Main trends and comparisons

From the table below it is noticeable that the most popular reason among students is the flexibility of the schedule (31%), while parents are less interested in that aspect (22%). This can be easily explained: students have a lot of classes at school and much homework. Online courses are always available, and students can do them whenever they want. The most important advantage of online language learning for parents is lower prices (33%), whereas the majority of the students does not think about this factor. Parents usually pay for all courses, so it is obvious that they are concerned about the price.

Many students choose online education because of the multimedia content (20%), the variety of languages (12%) and less time investment (15%). These advantages are important as they make the process of education more interesting and less time-consuming. The least popular reason for parents and students is frequent assessments (4% and 8% respectively), because they can be stressful for both groups of participants.

Future development

I assume that in the future more and more people will choose online language learning. The number of online courses and schools will definitely increase, so students will pay more attention to the variety of languages, while parents will think more about the price and will try to find the most profitable course. Overall, there are a lot of reasons to learn languages online. This way of studying has many advantages for all segments of population.

Introduction

In the modern world there are no boundaries for getting education.
Many students prefer ~choose~ online language learning. What are the reasons motivating students to make this choice? We have asked 100 students from Jackson High School and their parents to name 6 major reasons. Overall, the aim of this report is to anylice and compare the information, give some explanations and predict the future development of the situation

From the table it is noticeable that the most popular reason for students is the flexibility of the schedule → many classes and h/w

    parents: price
      ↳ they pay to are more concerned

    variety of languages, multimedia content, less time investment
                  ↓
              students like, more interesting and less time consuming

    least popular – frequent assessments ↳ stressful for all

Future + conc.

    more and more people will to choose online language learning.
          The number of online schools will increase,
    more important: price for parents and variety of languages
                              for students
