4). It was a dark rainy night. For the past 4 hours, I had been studying for my upcoming mathematics exam. I had been studying so hard, in fact, that I had solved over one hundred different tasks. Feeling exhausted, I thought it was about time that I turned the lights off and went to bed. I started sleeping, planning out the next day.

Suddenly the door opened. I had forgotten to lock the door, and a surprise visitor was something that I needed. cautiously, I stood up, prepared for anything, when I heard a familiar voice - my neighbor's, slightly relieved, yet still stamped, I went to the front door. In complete amazement, he told me to look out of the window. Expecting a car crash or some other catastrophe, I slowly opened the blinds. But something marvelous was revealed instead - an aurora borealis. For twenty minutes we stood there, gazing at the colossal, dynamic northern lights, without saying a word. It was a once in a lifetime moment. I had nearly forgotten all of tomorrow's worries, but alas, it was time to go back to bed.

I could not believe that something like that could happen. After all, I don't live anywhere close to the arctic! But I think that miracles are best left unexplained. The next week went beautifully, with each new day being more energetic than the last, and having long sinceaced my exams, I still cherish that moment.
