It was a dark rainy night. I was walking home after a hard day filled with preparations for the upcoming exams. I felt dizzy also because of the long distance I had to walk to get to my flat. My knees started to hurt, so I decided to sit on the nearest bench I could see. From the beginning of the day I was feeling under the weather and after several minutes of sitting I fell asleep. ~~I woke~~ I woke up because the ~~rain had~~ it had stopped raining. When I looked at my watch, I realised that it was too late to continue my journey. I turned around and saw a door, that led to a block of flats. Suddenly the door opened. It felt like it was asking me to come in. I didn't really want to stay outside so I rushed inside the building. As soon as I stepped into the room, the door closed and everything became dark. I wanted to use my phone as a torch but found it dead in my bag. I began to walk ~~on~~ forward carefully, when suddenly I felt a strong wind blowing into my face and drying my wet clothes. The stress I felt earlier began to fade away. As I reached the opposite side of the room, I ~~found~~ found another door and opened it. Suddenly I fell ~~in~~ down and ended up finding myself on a bench in front of my house without any headache! I could not believe that something like that could happen.
