my best shape.

27. B (It's become a non-negotiable part of my week. Even when work gets crazy, I make sure to carve out time for a session.)

28. A (I've always baked, but it was something used to do only occasionally, usually when there was a special occasion or I wanted to surprise my family with home-made treats and I didn't feel over the moon when I was doing it. I can't even think of this passion....)

29. D (What I love most is how disconnected I feel from the online world while I'm out there. There's no buzzing phone, no endless emails... instead of scrolling endlessly on your phone)

30. C (I never pictured myself joining a drama club - it felt so outside my comfort zone, I also really doubted that I could ever like something like that.)

25. B (... after a particularly stressful year, I decided to give it a shot.... It's the mental clarity it brings....)

Have you ever wondered how long could you bear hypothermia, locked in a city without food?

The population of the Russian city Leningrad endured this torture for several months. This event is known as the Blockade of Leningrad, when German troops deprived the people in the city of any connection to the country. The day commemorated ~~to the~~ freeing Leningrad is celebrated in every Russian city and village to express gratitude.

The German army surrounded the northern capital, firing ~~anybody~~ at anyone who would attempt to escape the borders. Their goal was to starve the citizens to death and then conquer the city. It was an important trading port. Goods, such as artillery, military supplies and food were transmitted via the city of bridges. But Leningrad didn't surrender to the enemy even in hunger and cold, although murders and crimes were committed within its ~~to~~ walls.

Nowadays, there's a special day dedicated to this honorable deed, however it's remembered most on the 9th of May as part of the Great Fatherland War.

For this event we eat the same amount of bread that was given per person during the blockade and held a minute of silence to the ticking sound of the metronom that could be heard ~~during~~ at that time in order to warn about any upcoming air raids.

This is my favourite event because it elicits pride in me. The day of taking the ~~the~~ blockade down represents Russian mentality. It is a great pain for Russia, albeit it displays resilience, strength, utmost hope and devotion to victory. If one wants to delve into Russian culture and understand us to the core - celebrate this day and the 9th of May with us.
