TASK 4.

These days corporations tend to notice the drawbacks of a five-days-a-week and nine-to-five worklife. In order to tackle Themedisc 2.

The problem of staff retention, ^{employees'} withdrawals and to improve their overall mental and physical states, companies test the four-day workweek. While in some cases the model ~~has~~ proves to be effective and successful, in others business and workers face certain difficulties with adapting the new system.

~~While the first text mainly focuses on the positive side of reduced hours, the second one primarily presents the case of the idea. Namely, both authors share common thoughts on that topic.~~

In the first passage it is highlighted that less days of work make employees feel more fulfilled in their personal lives and more contented with their jobs, which leads to ^{employees being} ~~increased~~ ^{more motivated} ~~productivity~~ to do better and, therefore, it ^{greatly} increases efficiency of labour. According to the first extract, there are relaxed employees between their shifts, the more productivity they perform at work. The second text, ^{argues} that an extra day-off causes extra premium and ^{nevertheless,} workers due to the need to complete the same amount of workloads. But both passages claim that some businesses can't have on the four-day workweek as because of their specifics (like requiring constant availability and presence). The second text even suggests that such a system might damage client relationships management. Despite these differences, both writers believe that only changing the ways of how business are run will make the model work. I also think that nowadays we should prioritize ourselves and not work; to set up a new system the old one has to be reconstructed completely.

In conclusion, ^{today} it may seem a dream to work four days a week ~~only~~, but by overcoming all the challenges the industry can really become something different.

What if social media didn't exist? How our lives would be changed? How my life would be different?

Усеновски 3.

Recently, ^{my} ~~that~~ ^{my} ~~mean~~ of ~~thought~~ has captivated me and hasn't released me since. I love to test out my mind by various "what ifs.." even though the victory doesn't know any clause. So I'm here to present some of my ideas and ~~maybe~~ ^{maybe} write some kind of a feedback from you? ^{z.fair, amusing and funous.}

Well, I've got thumbled upon this topic after ~~having~~ another arguments with my closest friends. It's no secret that in today's world everyone carries their phone around. So it's a logical that we ^{immediately} kill ourselves our phone. And here comes my question: if you can't put away your ~~phone~~ ^{device} for a moment, why do you choose to ignore your ~~people?~~ ^{people's feelings} It begins my comprehension! My friends answer me that it's nothing, ~~but~~ ~~for me it's a deliberate choice~~ ~~to~~ ~~kill~~ ~~ourselves~~ ~~and~~ ~~by~~ ~~putting~~ ~~away~~ ~~phones~~ ~~and~~ ~~not~~ ~~to~~ ~~be~~ ~~back~~ ~~again~~ ~~strong~~ ~~about~~ ~~of~~ ~~their~~ ~~devotion.~~ ^{starting} ~~the~~ ~~phone~~ ~~doesn't~~ ~~care~~ ~~enough!~~ And then I thought that the root is the culture of social media:
 we're used to ~~fast~~ ^{connections} everywhere and the ability to reach ^{internet} ~~for~~ ~~someone~~ at any time. But in reality people don't need even everyday interactions with others.
~~Remember~~ ~~and~~ ~~we~~ ~~need~~ ~~space~~ ~~for~~ ~~our~~ ~~study.~~ If we didn't have social media, we would have stronger relationships and yearn for each other more. ^{because our receptors wouldn't be fried} ~~pressure~~ ~~of~~ ~~what~~ ~~By~~ ~~expecting~~ ~~to~~ ~~receive~~ ~~reactions~~ ~~on~~ ~~our~~ ~~posts,~~
~~choosing~~ ~~to~~ ~~carefully~~ ~~what~~ ~~to~~ ~~like~~ ~~or~~ ~~share~~ ~~we~~ ~~become~~ ~~angry~~ and impatient; ~~that's~~ ~~definitely~~ ~~change~~ ~~our~~ ~~perception~~ ~~of~~ relationships ~~can~~ ^{to} ~~no~~ ~~better.~~

2. If sharing isn't always caring, maybe, knowing is also not a blessing?

It really isn't. Social media wraps us with information of different kind ⁱⁿ ~~our~~ ~~quality.~~ ~~But~~ ~~we~~ ~~don't~~ ~~even~~ ~~notice~~ how ~~constant~~ ⁱⁿ ~~impacts~~ ~~our~~ ~~daily~~ ~~world,~~ ~~but~~ ~~it~~ ~~does~~ ~~harmful!~~ Remember how many times news got you upset.

Тема № 4.

And it! If social media wasn't a thing, people would be more peaceful and less brainwashed with every propaganda. Of course, we would be less likely to see for ^{the} truth, but it's ^{been} relative, right? Our views would be more wholesome and stable, and internet wars wouldn't even exist.

I know that social media has undoubtedly ~~pro~~, but that inner peace is what I'm seeking for these days. I think recently time spent on social media really helps me with it. And what do you think? (I ~~was~~ ~~was~~ Am I starting another social media conflict?)
