On a nice day in the countryside, everything felt calm. The birds were singing, flowers were blooming... On days like these kids like me would usually sit at home and play video games, but my parents decided that today was the perfect day to go to the country. Everybody had a job to do: I was painting the trees white to protect them from pests, dad was collecting and burning all the dead branches, and mum was cooking lunch ~~for us~~.

Suddenly a loud noise surprised everyone. It was as if something great and heavy tipped over and fell. That noise was followed by dad's scream, but not just any scream. It was the "something went extremely wrong" scream. I ran to where it came from and met up with dad. He looked at me with worried eyes and ~~so~~ shouted "go fetch the bucket!". With adrenaline being the only thing powering my brain, I sprinted to the ~~only~~ one bucket I thought of, the bucket we usually used to water plants, took it, and handed it right to my father. He mumbled "good enough" and jogged to the back of the house, where the sound went from. Out of pure curiosity I followed him, and found him patting out the fire with the plant water I gave him. Turns out the metal barrel in which dad burnt the branches, ~~fell over~~ fell over.

I'd never thought something so interesting would happen to me. I would prefer ~~this~~ still this adventure over sitting at home.
