Subject: Top reasons for online language learning

Date: 18.05.20.

Introduction

Online language learning has become an increasingly popular activity in recent years. In this report, I would like to present the results of my survey conducted among school students and adults, outlining the topic of the most popular reasons for online language learning.

Changes and Trends

According to the results, the majority of school students (31%) are involved in online language studying due to flexible schedule. At the same time, the percentage of adults studying languages online for the same reason is lower and equals 22%. The most numerous part of older respondents participate in online language lessons because of lower prices (33%). While only 14% of adolescents are likely to consider this reason vital. It is also important to highlight that the percentage of adults choosing online studying for multimedia content is twice as low as the percentage of school students studying online for the same reason and equals 10%.

Reasons for these changes

Reasons for such changes are diverse. Firstly, adolescents may appreciate flexible timetable in a higher extent due to being involved into extracurricular activities and having exams to submit. The second reason for these changes can be explained by adults' valuing their income more than teenagers who are sponsored by their parents. Moreover, students may be more perceptive to the digital content.

Future trends

In recent future, it is highly likely that older respondents will consider multimedia content to be the reason for taking online language lessons due to increasing involvement of population in social media. The growth is also expected in the number of young people choosing online language learning for lower prices because of the tendency among youth to start working earlier.

Conclusion

In conclusion, it is worth mentioning that online language learning is a fascinating way of receiving education. Therefore, one should find many reasons to enroll.
